Anglo-French Fleet Continues Bombardment of the Dardanelles Forts; Ruseians Claim to Have Driven Germans Further Back Toward Own Frontier in Latest Fighting

LONDON, March 7. - Whether Greece is to throw in her lot with the affice of the triple entente or remain neutral, is the absorbing question of the war. The Hellenic kingdom is in the threes of a mighty crisis, with King Constantine said to be in favor of neutrality and the retiring premier, Eleutherius, Venizelos, one of the strongest men in Greece, declared to be uncompromisingly opposed to such a step.

The resignation of the premier and his cabinet Saturday is reputed to have been due to the unyielding attitude of the monarch. The belief prevails that, with the appointment of a new ministry, the storm clouds would dissipate. This feeling was heightened by reports from Athens that Venixelos had stated in a speech in the chamber of deputies that he and his followers would support any government the king might

THE COLLEGE COMMONS

THE new system of Harvard University commons for freshmen is proving a great success. When it was first decided, under President Lowell to require all memhers of the freshman class, excepting those in their own homes and a limited number who were working in private homes for their board and rooms, to live in the college residences and take their meals there, much was said about "too much paternalism." and many argued that the scheme would not work; but it has already been shown to be one of the best things ever undertaken by the university.

Parents are more than glad to know that their children are personally cared for during their first months at college, rather than left to fall into careless ways of living and working. Members of the faculty have found their students coming to them in much better intellectual and moral condition than under the old system. The students themselves have come to take great satisfaction in the more intimate and democratic associations established by life in the college residences and about the common dining tables. There are over six hundred of these students who are required to live in these dormitories and dine in the commons.

Nothing has done as much to produce a spirit of unity and lovalty among the students of Harvard University as this plan of President Lowell's. Since it started last. fall it has been watched very keenly by the college world, and all the great educational experts feel that it has gone a long way toward solving an exceedingly difficult problem in university administration. Without doubt hundreds of boys will be saved to useful and upright living. as well as to better intellectual standards, because they are guided and cared for during the first months that they are away from home or from the personal watchfulness and care of the modern preparatory school.

Harvard University is certainly to be congratulated on solving for itself, and also for other colleges, a difficult and most important educational problem. The old haphazard method of caring for freshmen is doomed forever, and a constructive and wise way of guarding and guiding the youth of the nation is surely coming into vogue.

"CONOUERING" BELGIUM

THE conquest of Belgium so say the official reports from Berlin is practically complete. The capital and principal cities are in the hands of the conquerors; most of the money in the country is in the same hands, and the remainder of it is gradually being extracted in the form of "contributions," "levies," etc. In the days of Jesse James it was valled bank robbery, but when the stunt is performed by a divinely inspired potentate it seems desirable to use less harsh terms. Anyway, Belgium is officially conquered and the world is officially informed that it is to be Incorporated in some fashion into the German empire, never again to breathe the fresh air of freedom.

But is it? Perhaps not. Even the German militarists who honestly believe that God created them and their system of "Knitur" expressly to rule all other peoples. whether they want it or not, ought to know enough of history to realize what it means to impose their autocratic sway on a helpless alien race. For usually the helplessness proves to be only temporary. A small nation can be crushed by the brute. force of superior numbers, as Belgium has been, but its determination to resist never weakens. Witness the case of Poland.

It is 2,000 years since Julius Caesar wrote of the splendid fighting qualities of the Belgians, who then, as now, were engaged in war with their neighbors in Germany. BREAD UPON THE WATERS

CHRISTMAS was approaching and the children at the Stration home were eager for its attendant joys. As one of the special entertainment features the Superintendent had planned to take them to a moving picture show, and the little folks were wild with delight. One day one of them read in The Cazette that a certain family needed hed clothing. Soon after there were whisperings among the children, and one, selected as a spokesman, asked the Superintendent if they could have the money that was to have been spent for the "movies;" if they wished. He told them they could, if they all wished it. Not one dissented and the money, $1.05, was turned over to them:

They bought material and, under the supervision of the 'mothers' and 'aunts,' made some bed clothing, which was presented to the family in need.

A few weeks later the children were on their way to a little banquet given in their. honor at a local restaurant. A man on the car asked of they were not the Stratton home children, and upon being told that they were, said that he wanted to give them money to go to a moving picture show. He gave the "mother" $2.10.

Immediately flashed through their minds the $1.05 that they had sacrificed hefore Christmas. Their unknown benefactor had given them twice that amount, These little folks, orphans and participants in a unique philanthropy, thought long and hard over the parable that had been worked out in their own lives, right before their eves. No one needs to tell fancied stories to prove to them the parable of bread, cast upon the waters, returning. Such incidents as this should make the world better.

THE FRANCO-PRUSSIAN WAR To the Editor of The Gazette:

"Germany's familier boast of how the kaiser by only to this: that it was 44 years ago last summer since the Germana have made a successful raid on their neighbors' territory," etc.

Everyhody, including the editor of Life, has the abagintely France of Napoleon that brought on Napoleon felt his throne tottering and figured that a successful war would give him a new lease of power and he made no secret of his intentions, if successful of taking from Prussia her Rhenish provinces, thus making the Rhine the eastern boundary of France.

But Germany was even then guilty of the stroclone crime of being prepared for just such mergencies. France was speedily, vanquished, had, to pay a huge war indemnity and lost the two provinces of Alsace-Lorraine, which, however, about 200 years ago had been stolen by France from Ger-

THE SPANISH LANGUAGE From the Chicago Tribune.

The comparative neglect in American schools of the Spanish language, despite its disciplinary, social, cultural and commercial values, impels the inarrieters in that tongue to organize for its defense In the state of New York, where the examination board has recently reduced Spanish below such branches as drawing and stenography, teachers have begun a campaign for its rehabilitation, urging that it he restored to a position with French and German in the list of selective subjects required for entrance diplomas. In their plea for consideration they insist that the study of Spanish is as efficient in the development of brain loops as that of French, because of its intricacy of idiomatic expression and its opulence of vocabulary. They point to the riches of its older literature, as well as to the proficiency of its modern writers in the play, the novel, and the main strength kept the peace for 44 years amounts short story. Of its social worth they say that it is the language of one-tenth of all the people under the protection of the American flag, the tongue of more than 60,000,000 of our neighbors in the west ern hemisphere. THE BATILF CRUISER

Next to the substarias, the most disagreeable craft to have around sares isn't being indulged in is the hatile cruiser.

The United States, which processes cantiously, adopting naval plans as anon as other nations have distarded hem, has not as yet die svered the hartle cruiser, but Germany has. She discovered some of England's late in style terpede best and opn run away from a to pade itself.

December, and also in January. The result of the discovery in each instance was tragic in the extreme.

The attle cruiser is a sort of welterweight battleship, with express train attachments. It carries gune big enough to shoot up anything affoct, and enough armor to make it imperfous to any shells smaller than a nail keg. It also contains a set of engines which can drive it about 35 miles an hour

This is the greatest talent of the batle cruiser. It is faster than the oldstyle torpedo boat, and it can run away rom a torpedo itself. It is faster than a limited train on a "eafety first" raiload. It is so fast that it only has to fight when it wants to.

When a battle cruiser goes out on a little gunning expedition and meets a flock of battlesips, the captain does not lash the flag to the mast and order the band to play while the ship is going down. He turns around and runs. The Lusitania would look like a dock healds a battle cruiser which was engaged in going away, from some where at top speed. But when the battle emiser meets an enemy with guns a little smaller in the walst than its own, it doesn't also run. It runs ust fast enough to allow the enemy's shots to make beautiful fountains of the water about 1,000 varde astern while it is dropping shells in the said enemy's smokestacks and other vital spots and shooting it into a mass of unidentified remains

England has many very fine battle ruisers, and so has Germany, If these cruisers ever become peaved at the United States they would cause us a great deal of embarrassment. They would run away from our battleships and would refuse to let anything else run away from them. If our fastest critiser set out to catch a real battle cruiser, the latter would eatch up with it from behind and ram it in the stern less than two weeks

Ritchie is in hopes of emulating the late lamented Stanley Ketchel, who after relinquishing his middleweight title to Billy Papke retrieved it in their next battle. It will be recalled that Ritchle, up to July to last, was the proud possessor of the lightweight championship.
